

SOLOMONS' SECRETS AUDITIONS - ANNA

ANNA

We never wanted to have kids. From the moment we met we bonded over our mutual desire to work, travel, be free spirits and not be tied down to domestic life. In our entire relationship I have never fallen pregnant. Never. And now, here I am pregnant by accident and in some cruel twist of fate my poor sister, who desperately wants a child is struggling to conceive. I almost feel like I have to have this child for her sake. Which is totally crazy. If this decision were just about me I know exactly what I would do. But somehow, it's not just about me.

Ugghhh. Sisters.

I hate not being able to tell her I'm pregnant.
